The outstanding points to be considered in selecting vegetable exhibits are quality and condition. The judging of a vegetable exhibit is generally based on the readiness of the product for immediate use. The quality of the product is determined by actual test. Condition and quality also include the points of freedom from disease, insect work, mechanical injury, and defects. Vegetable exhibits should comprise specimens which are practically perfect from physical standpoint. Medium sizes are generally preferred to the very large sizes. Uniformity, a point which applies to exhibits that include more than one specimen, is particularly important.

Division 7 Adult

Division 8 Junior (7 to 14) Danish system)

Select the best individual specimens obtainable cut close to the ground. Consider the size of the stems, heads, pods, etc: color (true to variety, un-weathered); condition (no insect or weather damage or disease). Place in loose bundles and hang, heads down to dry/cure. After the samples are cured, strip all the leaves from the stems and bind into sheaths (about 5 inches in diameter). There are several methods of binding sheaths. Emphasis will be on the quality of the grain within the sheaths versus binding styles. NOTE: Do not strip Field peas of leaves. Start binding Safflower sheaths directly below where main stem begins to branch out to the heads. The lower leaves on Safflower stems should be stripped. The leaves on the flowering branches above the main stem can be left. A Sunflower sheath should consist of four (4) stalks cut at ground level and bound .List variety on entry blank
